The London Lancet has made a review of the last football season from a surgical point of view. The casualties of the game tot up as follows: Deaths, 13; fractures of legs, 15; of arms, 4; of collar-bones, 11; injuries, to spines, 3; noses, 1; knees, 1; aukles, 1; cheeks, 1.

This proves that football, as she is played, is a manly game. There is nothing effeminate in taking your life in your hand and cheerfully kicking a leather ball around a field. Such a contest promotes nerve, encourages pluck, and has aheaves of glory in it.

Only why not let each side have an ambulance corps, with surgeons, doctors and undertakers? This would be humane. and not too coddling. Football is a great game, and the American college boys play it well.
